

SPECIAL EDUCATIONAL NEEDS (SEN) POLICY

Learn to Live Federation Vision Statement

Everyone will be the best that they can be
Everyone has a voice
No-one is excluded

The Learn to Live Federation believes that all learners are entitled to equitable access to rich and inspiring learning opportunities, encompassing the full range of curriculum areas within the Early Years Foundation Stage, National Curriculum, Entry Level and Life Skills.

This is achieved through

- person centred processes that allow a deep understanding of each individual;
- close working with families; and
- skilled differentiation and delivery of learning opportunities by exceptional teaching and support staff

Learning is carefully tailored to suit learners who may have severe learning difficulties (SLD), profound and multiple learning difficulties (PMLD) and/or complex needs including Autism Spectrum Condition (ASC).

Having learning difficulties means the child/young person will find it hard to understand, learn and remember new things. They will also have problems with a range of things such as communication, being aware of risks or managing everyday tasks. Many also have additional impairments of vision, hearing and movement as well as other challenges such as epilepsy or autism, adding to their difficulty in gathering and using information from the world around them. This means that each learner needs the combined skills and knowledge of a range of professionals, (teachers, advisory teachers, therapists, advocates and other specialists), listening carefully to them and working closely with their families, to design learning programmes.

The purpose of these learning programmes is to:

- Nurture talent and ambition
- Empower communication and decision making
- Ensure all needs are met.

PROVISION

The foundation of our provision is the Learn to Live Rights-Based Model of Self Direction.

Learn to Live is based on a set of rights supported by practical tools and processes that are designed to ensure every learner can access them. Every child or young person in our federation has a Core Promise of rights:

- the right to be listened to, (eg, by using a process called “Listen to Me” and holding annual Person Centred Reviews);
- the right to communicate, (eg through Communication Profiles, IT to support communication and additional Speech and Language Therapy provided by the school);
- the right to be helped to make good decisions (by having opportunities to choose and to learn about decision making, through excellent behaviour support systems and Good Choices Plans);
- the right to be known as an individual, (through one page profiles, very close working with families, staff training in understanding the needs of individuals);
- the right to inform plans and targets made for them, (through termly Home:School agreement meetings where families, school and the learner work together to set short term targets and by supporting young people to assess their own learning);

- the right to be inspired (by a highly motivating curriculum and a broad range of additional activities, residential adventurous opportunities, inclusion and work experience for older students) ; and
- the right to have a plan that meets their needs, (this includes a personal transition budget in FE).

There are 4 important principles that support these rights:

- Support me to have my say: Each school employs a Lead Advocate, who run advocacy services to ensure individuals have the help they need to have their voice heard. The student council in each school has a budget and elected student representatives. They are involved in teacher recruitment and key decisions, such as building projects.
- Hear my voice and change what you do: The school exists solely for learners and their families and needs to change and develop according to their needs. Information about what is and isn't working for children/ young people and their families is collected every year from the annual person centred reviews, and used to inform the school development plan.
- Motivate and involve me: What are the things that make every individual "tick"? How can we use this to get them interested in their learning? By working closely and respectfully with families and by understanding different learning styles, we can find the "twinkle" in every child/ young person and help them to achieve their potential.
- Make sure we all make a positive difference to my life: we need to think about the impact that learning is likely to have on the future life chances and choices of our learners: "Will I get a job/live independently/ keep in touch with my friends and make new friends?" "Will I feel good about myself and will others understand and respect me?" Our leavers always leave school with a solid plan and a carefully-considered set of next steps that they and their family have been fully involved in. Many achieve external accreditation and some achieve certificates, such as GCSE. All have experienced respect, choice and opportunity.

Each learner will be taught in a small group within a class or tutor group led by a qualified teacher who will be continually enhancing and developing their teaching skills through high quality professional development. Each class group will be supported by at least three Teaching Assistants who also access continual learning and development, linked to the needs and aspirations of learners.

Specialist personnel, from within each school, drawn from the federation, co-located from other agencies or sought out and bought-in specifically, will work closely together and with families, to address the specific needs of pupils. Specialist services include:

- Teachers with QTVI (Qualified Teachers of the Visually Impaired)
- Lead Advocates and advocacy champion teams

Class teachers will liaise with specialists and families in order to provide an integrated provision. All pupils will have access to equipment/resource items that will address their individual requirements. Each pupil will have access as appropriate to the hydrotherapy pool as well as Northbrook and Totnes swimming pools.

Each school has specialist learning environments including sensory rooms, a VI room, and facilities for Rebound therapy. As well as very well developed outdoor learning opportunities, including horticulture, small animal care and rural craft opportunities, there are also opportunities for off site learning e.g. residential trip (including travel to other countries), horse riding, travel training, donkey sanctuary, work experience. All opportunities are tailored to meet the needs of the individual.

The strategic use of person centred planning data will be used to target school development so that pupils needs are reflected and their aspirations supported. A senior teacher and a senior leader with responsibility for commissioning, work together to actively ensure provision for pupils eligible for Pupil Premium support is at least equitable.

Emotional and social development is intrinsic across the curriculum within all key stages. Student voice and Advocacy, Transition planning, physical and health needs and 'Listen to me' information from the annual person centred reviews are all used to inform the young person's curriculum planning. Active School Councils feed back to senior leaders and Governors regularly. The students are empowered and influence strategic planning.

As a federation we understand the significance of planning for smooth transitions throughout school life. Each student/pupil has a transition passport to support moving between phases of education and in preparing for adulthood. All students have a personal learning programme which is driven by what is important for them and to them both now and in terms of future outcomes.

Students are supported to be independent, make choices and lead their own learning wherever possible. They are also supported to learn new skills and transfer existing skills into wider community settings.

There is a strong emphasis on work experience, work related learning and working towards potential employment opportunities for our young people in the future.

IDENTIFICATION AND ASSESSMENT

All pupils attending the federation schools will have a statement of SEN or Education Health and Care Plan (EHCP) prior to school entry unless in exceptional cases. This will be used to inform baseline assessments together with information from previous placements, class observations and discussions with parents during the first term.

Each pupil will have a Person Centred Home School Agreement setting out their personal targets. Each pupil will also, as a class member, be working on the class group programme in all areas of the Early Years foundation stage, National Curriculum, Entry level and life skills curriculum. Both individual and class programmes will be discussed with parents at the beginning of term and evaluated by all at the end of term. The programmes will provide each pupil with a broad and balanced curriculum.

Each pupil has an entitlement to a set of Person Centred processes known as the Core Promise, as described above. This comprises a Person Centred annual review and action plan, one page profile, communication plan, a personalised Home/School Agreement, decision making development opportunities and, in their final year, a personal resource allocation. Pupils are involved in all elements of their education and are encouraged to be actively involved in decision making targeting and assessment whenever possible.

The progress of individual pupils' experiences and achievements will be recorded using schools' evidence-based assessment procedures and robustly monitored by core subject leaders and senior leader team.

The Governing body will evaluate and monitor the effectiveness of provision made for all students within the Federation via learning walks, evaluation days and through targeted meetings linked to the appropriate portfolio.

If parents are unhappy about the education content or other provision available in the Federation, they will be encouraged in the first instance to voice their concerns to the class teacher. If issues remain unresolved, parents should refer then to the Executive Head, and if they do not feel a satisfactory outcome has been arrived at, parents should be referred to the school's policy on complaints.

PARTNERSHIPS

All teaching and non-teaching staff will be given appropriate training which will be specific to the needs of the pupils within the Federation. The content of the training will be agreed by individual consultation and will be in line with the Learn to Live Development and Innovation Plan.

Curriculum leaders will be encouraged to seek the advice of experts such as advisers and educational psychologists with regard to curriculum content, style and delivery. Liaison and advice will be sought from other agencies, such as care managers, social workers and respite facilities. It is expected that class teachers will build a partnership with their class groups and individual parents, as well as links to the local learning Community.

There is an expectation that all agencies work to the ethos of Integrated Children's Services and a person centred approach. Each school has a support services team who facilitate these links.

Pupils will have the opportunity to link with a mainstream school, for purposeful and meaningful inclusion placements preferably within their home locality.
